BIOGRAPHY

Jody Jenkins studied percussion and composition at the Royal Academy of Music, London. He now concentrates on composing for film and television, as well as collaborating with other film-composers as a percussionist and programmer/orchestrator. In the last few years Jody has scored a number of feature films, recently completing 'Tomorrow' (Dir. Martha Pinson, Exec. Prod. Martin Scorsese); Israeli/UK production 'Lipstika' and UK black-comedy 'Cockneys Vs Zombies'.

Jody has worked on countless film scores in a variety of roles within the music department, including percussion programmer for Academy Award winner Dario Marianelli, on films such as 'Bumblebee', 'Paddington 2', 'V for Vendetta' and 'Atonement'. He also worked alongside Harry Gregson-Williams on the score for Disney's 'Narnia – Prince Caspian' and as programmer for Javier Navarrete on Warner Bros. blockbuster: 'Wrath Of The Titans'.

As a composer for television, Jody has established ongoing relationships with several production houses where his work has included composing the incidental music, orchestrating and conducting the BBC National Orchestra of Wales for 'Wales: Land of the Wild', BBC Science programme 'Secrets of the Sexes' and the score to the BBC/Tiger Aspect production 'The Convent'. Many of Jody's orchestral works have been recorded by major production music libraries such as EMI, Universal and Audio Network, and have been synced on programs such as Top Gear, Brian Cox's 'Wonders of the Universe', Horizon and Panorama to name a few. Jody has also composed music for many international advertising campaigns, including projects for British Gas, McDonalds, Samsung and the award-winning campaign for BMW's C1 bike.
